Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bell(6161096A), King et al.(5704045A) and George, Jr.(5775734A).

Bell discloses a financial instrument that is activated or executed based on a specific event that occurs like a split dollar event or other financial event. The financial instrument is controlled by a third party within a Rabbi Trust structure(Abstract, col. 1, line 55-col. 3, line 10).

Bell fail to teach legally segregated relationship between the issuing entity and the net recipients of the proceeds upon an event affecting firm valuation. However, King et al. does teach third party management of financial instrument with professionals' interests taken into account(Abstract, Col. 3, line 20-col. 4, line 67). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art the time the Applicant's invention was made to modify the teachings of Bell to include the step of third party financial instrument management for professionals. The motivation to combine these references is to eliminate conflicts of interest.
